In This Issue

This issue of the Residents' Journal highlights a variety of topics. First, Sourav Sengupta, M.D., M.P.H., shares his own experience as a chief resident and outlines the transitions that accompany this responsibility. Maria Andrea Baez, M.D., and Jonathan Avery, M.D., discuss the role of the cerebellum in bipolar disorder as well as in other psychiatric disorders. Daniel Bristow, M.D., discusses the use of electronic medical records in outpatient psychiatry and the need for further study of outpatient efficiency using this technology. Gayle Pletsch, M.D., and Christopher Rodgman, M.D., describe a case of Bromo-DragonFLY-induced dystonia in a young woman with a history of bipolar disorder. Diane L. Lewis, M.D., presents a unique case report of a 61-year-old woman with a video game addiction. Lastly, Alan Hsu, M.D., contributes a perspective on the "Mind Games" competition at last year's APA annual meeting, of which he was a participant.

Official Journal of the American Psychiatric Association

Edited by Robert Freedman, M.D.

- The American Journal of Psychiatry (AJP) has an Impact Factor of 12.539 according to the 2011 Journal Citation Reports® (Thomson Reuters, 2012), placing it 2nd among the 129 journals in psychiatry while still remaining the far-and-away leader in total citations.
- The American Journal of Psychiatry is also the #2 journal in psychiatry in terms of immediacy according to Thomson Scientific's Immediacy Index. This important performance metric is calculated by dividing the number of citations to articles published in a given year by the number of articles published in that year.
- A poll conducted by the BioMedical & Life Sciences Division of The Special Libraries Association identified the 100 most influential journals in all of Biology & Medicine over the last 100 years. The American Journal of Psychiatry was among those honored, the only psychiatry/psychology journal represented.

No other psychiatric journal reaches more psychiatrists with greater impact or immediacy than the one the overwhelming majority of psychiatrists considers essential: AJP.

Marlene Dietrich with Skull (gouache on paper, 1975) by Stanley Lench (1934–2000)

Marlene Dietrich was at the peak of her film career between the 1920s and 1950s. She was well known for retaining her beauty through the use of wigs and cosmetics, and Lench reflects this in the over-emphasis of the actress' facial features, hairstyle and long painted fingernails. The skull on the left undermines the preservation of youth by acting as a memento mori – a reminder of mortality.

Lench's bold and colourful work often depicts his childhood fascination with popular icons and stars of the silver screen. He experienced prolonged bouts of mental illness throughout his life, which on occasion forced him into a reclusive existence. Lench explained that he became an artist to 'cheat death and time'. This statement reflects the themes of Lench's work, but also highlights his ultimate goal: to be recognised and remembered for his art.

We are always looking for interesting and visually appealing images for the cover of the Journal and would welcome suggestions or pictures, which should be sent to Dr Allan Beveridge, British Journal of Psychiatry, 17 Belgrave Square, London SW1X 8PG, UK or bjp@rcpsych.ac.uk.
