THE AMERICAN JOURNAL OF PSYCHIATRY

The most widely read psychiatric journal in the world!

- The American Journal of Psychiatry (AJP) latest Impact Factor is 14.721, a nearly 2 point rise from last year's 12.759 according to the recently released 2012 Journal Citation Reports® (Thomson Reuters, 2013). AJP, a publication of the American Psychiatric Association, ranks second among 135 journals in psychiatry.
 - The American Journal of Psychiatry is again among the top journals in psychiatry in terms of immediacy according to Thomson Scientific's Immediacy Index. This important performance metric is a good measure of how quickly a given journal's articles are cited—AJP's placement is a result of publishing articles that are relevant, covering current “hot” topics and cutting-edge research, and getting these findings to the field faster with AJP in Advance, the Journal's online-ahead-of-print publication protocol.
 - And, as it has for many years, AJP remains far and away the leader among psychiatric publications in total citations. It's 42,730 citation count was almost 5,000 citations above the next publication.
- The editors of Journal Watch Psychiatry announced the top psychiatry stories of 2012. Four articles from The American Journal of Psychiatry were honored:
 - Metformin for Antipsychotic-Induced Adverse Effects in Women With Schizophrenia (Am J Psychiatry 2012;169:813-821.)
 - Creatine Augmentation of SSRIs for Depression (Am J Psychiatry 2012;169:937-945)
 - Antipsychotics Vary in Mortality Risk in Dementia Patients (Am J Psychiatry 2012;169:71-79.)
 - Tools for Preventing Postpartum Psychosis and Mania (Am J Psychiatry 2012;169:609-615)

No other journal had more than one article in the top stories.

- A poll conducted by the BioMedical & Life Sciences Division of The Special Libraries Association identified the 100 most influential journals in all of Biology & Medicine over the last 100 years. The American Journal of Psychiatry was among those honored, the only psychiatry/psychology journal represented.

Stills from All Divided Selves (2011). Luke Fowler (b. 1978)

Known for his portraits of radical figures and social experiments, Glaswegian artist Luke Fowler was one of the nominees for the Turner Prize 2012 for his film All Divided Selves about RD Laing. Based on original archive footage, interleaved with Fowler's own film and sound, the piece is a collage of material from different stages of Laing's life and work. The editing of footage from a variety of contexts results in a narrative discontinuity that merges public appearances and television interviews together with moments of everyday clinical work. Previous examples of Fowler's biographical and documentary filmmaking have often focused on psychiatry or anti-psychiatry. What You See Is Where You're At (2001) described Kingsley Hall, a community centre in east London, founded in the 1960s by RD Laing and the Philadelphia Association as an alternative to conventional mental institutions. In a subsequent installation, The Nine Monads of David Bell (2006), the artist focused on David Bell, one of the residents at Kingsley Hall, with an installation that included a sound piece from original recordings of David Bell's speech, notes he wrote on newspaper and video reenactments of his dreams.

Images courtesy the artist, The Modern Institute/Toby Webster Ltd, Glasgow and Galerie Gisela Capitain, Cologne. Submitted by Dr Isabel Valli.

We are always looking for interesting and visually appealing images for the cover of the Journal and would welcome suggestions or pictures, which should be sent to Dr Allan Beveridge, British Journal of Psychiatry, 17 Belgrave Square, London SW1X 8PG, UK or bjp@rcpsych.ac.uk.
