Cover

The articles in this issue are devoted entirely to new research on schizophrenia. The cover image is a painting by Susan Sistare Thorne (1955–1993) entitled “Canyon Planet.” Image used with permission of Ms. Thorne’s parents, who write about their daughter: “Susan was a very talented and creative artist, photographer, musician, and dancer. She was a true lover of nature and wilderness. She had a happy childhood and school years. Her mental illness did not show up until her late 20s, and she finally took her life at the age of 38. She had become a Buddhist, so we feel that she decided to move on to the next reincarnation, since this life was no longer working for her. Susan was beautiful and strong-willed. We miss her very much.” The painting was shown in the U.S. Capitol Building as part of NAMI’s celebration of the art of persons who have a mental illness.
