Individual Treatment of Posttraumatic Stress Disorder Using Mantram Repetition: A Randomized Clinical Trial

Considerable interest focuses on the utility of mantram repetition therapy, a novel psychotherapeutic treatment for PTSD. The authors report new results from a randomized control trial comparing this treatment to present-centered therapy in more than 80 patients with PTSD. Results suggest that mantram-based treatment may exert greater effects than the other psychotherapy on symptoms of PTSD.

Predicting Suicide Attempts and Suicide Deaths Following Outpatient Visits Using Electronic Health Records

Advances in computer technology provide unusual opportunities to improve prediction for rare outcomes. The authors use these advances to derive a prediction algorithm for suicide-related behavior by drawing data from both self reported depressive symptoms and health-record information. The algorithm could inform clinicians trying to identify patients at highest risk for suicide-related behavior.

AJP CME

Earn CME credit: 3 courses per issue

This month's courses appear on pages 917–920. Each short course is based on one article in this issue and can earn up to 1 AMA PRA Category 1 Credit[™]. CME credit is issued only online, and a paid subscription to AJP's CME course program is required.

AJP Multimedia

Access Audio or Video for highlights of each issue

In AJP Audio this month, host Ann Thomas talks with Betsy D. Kennard, Psy.D., about her study on an inpatient intervention and smartphone app to reduce adolescent suicide attempts following hospital discharge. Executive Editor Michael Roy reviews research on caring for patients with nonepileptic seizures, how sudden parental death affects depression in children, the relationship between abortion and suicidal ideation, and computerized CBT for addiction treatment.

In this month's video, Deputy Editor Daniel S. Pine, M.D., discusses the articles "Randomized Clinical Trial of Computerized and Clinician-Delivered CBT in Comparison With Standard Outpatient Treatment for Substance Use Disorders: Primary Within-Treatment and Follow-Up Outcomes" and "Clinical Implementation of Pharmacogenetic Decision Support Tools for Antidepressant Drug Prescribing."

50 Years Ago this Month: Psychosocial Factors in Riots—Old and New

John P. Spiegel writes that we have been more willing to settle for violence than to attend to the social conflicts that generate it. A first step toward dealing with the underlying problem would be acknowledging its existence, then approach its solution through attempts to share power with previously excluded groups.

BRITISH COLUMBIA, CANADA

WILLIAMS LAKE
